Task force report is just 1st step toward inclusion

By Neil Fater

Although their spirits appeared somewhat dampened by their report being labeled a utopia at Tuesday night's School Committee meeting, members of the task force that supported a movement toward inclusion in Andover schools will continue looking into the mainstreaming issue. In fact,

Tuesday night's meeting made clear that their work has just begun. The word "inclusion" is being used to describe mixing all ability levels at all levels in the Andover public schools, although technically, inclusion refers to mixing in learning-disabled students.

"Tonight is the first of a series of discussions," Mark

School board nixes condoms in 3-2 vote

'We're not a pharmacy'

By Neil Fater

In a 3-2 vote, the School Committee decided Tuesday night that condoms will not be made available to students in the Andover public schools.

The decision was handed down after a year of deliberation by the AIDS Advisory Subcommittee, a public forum to elicit the opinions of town residents, and following the presentation of the subcommittee's findings.

"I'd love to agree with you," said Mary Lyman, School Committee and AIDS advisory subcommittee member, to those leaning toward a no vote on condom availability. "But as one person said, you shouldn't have to die from a mistake."

"I am very sensitive to the issue and concerned about the kids," said committee member Dick Muller, who along with Bill Huston and Susan Dalton voted down the availability proposal. "I hear what people are saying but I don't think we're a pharmacy. We are educators and need to beef up our (curriculum)."

Selectmen call Nov. 8 Special Town Meeting

By Don Staruk

Selectmen Monday night voted to hold a Special Town Meeting on Monday, Nov. 8, mainly to appropriate $820,000 in state aid, most of which is education aid. According to the new Education Reform law, a special town meeting is now required to appropriate all the Chapter 70 education aid.

"This wouldn't be happening if the state would attend to their business up front," Selectman Larry Larsen said before the vote. "We have to deal with the ambivalence and ineptitude."

Winning may not be everything, but it sure brings joy to Special Olympian Ed Lorian, who competed Sunday with Challenge Unlimited at Ironstone Farm's Special Olympics. Located at 456 Lowell St., Challenge Unlimited is a therapeutic riding program designed for children and adults with handicaps. Two Andover residents, Rachel Pakos and Whitney McGlaughlin, each won gold and silver medals in Sunday's events. They are now eligible to compete at the state level, and if they pass that, at the international level.

Phillips student faces assault charge

By Don Staruk

A Phillips Academy student may face a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon after allegedly threatening a school cafeteria worker with a toy gun Monday in what police say was supposed to be a practical joke. Beverly Henderson, director of public information for PA, said the student was completing an assignment for his film class.

The student, a 16-year-old male from Chicago, apparently staged an argument in the dining commons about the size of a sandwich in order to make the older, female cafeteria worker think he was really angry. He then stepped back, drew the toy gun, a plastic pellet gun realistically designed to resemble a .45 caliber pistol, and pointed it at the woman. The entire incident was filmed for the assignment by a friend of the student, and police have viewed the tape, according to Lt. Kevin Lynch. Ms. Henderson said to her knowledge the teacher was not aware of how this student was going to complete his assignment.

"When you see the tape, you get furious," Lt. Lynch said.

Despite the fact that the gun was a plastic toy, the student could be charged with assault with a dangerous weapon because the victim thought it was real, according to Lt. Lynch. "One only needs to believe the weapon is real," the lieutenant said.

After viewing the film, Lt. Lynch said there is no question the worker thought the gun was real and was in fear. The video makes it an open and shut case, he said.

If the worker had suffered a heart attack and died, the student could be facing a murder charge, Lt. Lynch said. The victim, from Lawrence, is very upset about the incident and has good reason to be, Lt. Lynch added.

The school scheduled a disciplinary hearing on the incident for today, Thursday, and it is possible the student could be suspended or expelled from the school. If the student is expelled and sent back to Chicago, it is possible the charges would be dropped, according to police.

Patrolman Richard Aumais is investigating.

AVIS plans celebrations for 100th birthday

By Marta Hornidge

AVIS (Andover Improvement Society) invites all those interested in the preservation of open spaces to a series of events celebrating the 100-year birthday of AVIS.

Believed to be the second oldest land conservation society in the country, AVIS was founded by a group of 30 determined Andover citizens with an initial purpose to make Andover "clean and beautiful," (hence the word "improvement" in the name).

During the following 100 years, the emphasis has changed from removing solid waste from dusty streets and planting roadside flower beds to acquiring land for open space recreational purposes, a preservation for future generations. From the first gift of land, Indian Ridge, in 1915 to the present, AVIS can look with pride at ownership of 22 reservations totaling more than 1,000 acres of land.

A group of AVIS members met during the summer to plan a series of events to celebrate the 100th anniversary.

will begin in December and culminate Thanksgiving weekend in 1994.

The important centennial kickoff planned for Jan. 26, 1994, will be a display of early AVIS memorabilia at the Andover Historical Society. The AVIS centennial committee, Susan Dennett, Ricky Garcia, Diane Grieco and Peggy Keck, with the help of author and historian Juliet Moford and the Andover Historical Society, has been meeting several times a week, digging through fascinating documents. Minutes of AVIS meetings beginning in 1894 have been located. The search produced pictures of AVIS founding fathers (and mothers), pictures of Andover streets before paving was introduced and old lantern slides of the Andover downtown areas. AVIS welcomes any memorabilia owned by townspeople to add to this display. Contact the Townsmen or Marta Hornidge.

Other events to be publicized in the coming year are historical walks on AVIS reservations led

NEWS IN BRIEF

Local people work to reform campaigns

Andover residents have joined with Common Cause in taking a stand against corruption in Massachusetts politics. Joel Edelstein and Bill Washburn have volunteered to be local town coordinators and residents have signed on to help in a state-wide effort to reform the campaign finance system. Common Cause needs to collect 100,000 signatures by Nov. 10 to place a comprehensive reform bill on the ballot in 1994.

Mr. Edelstein and Mr. Washburn and the staff of volunteers are well on their way to meeting their town goal of 1,250 signatures. Common Cause applauds the efforts of all concerned citizens and, with just six weeks remaining in the campaign, encourages everyone to participate in the effort to make politicians accountable. For more information on lending support, call Common Cause at (617) 426-9600.

New group to fight incineration

The evening of Thursday, Sept. 30, marked the convening of a working group of representatives from several Merrimack Valley environmental groups focused on the problem of further development of waste incinerators in the region.

Hosted and organized by the Environmental Action Group of the Andovers (EAGA), this first meeting featured the state director of Clean Water Action, the presidents of the Merrimack River Watershed Council, Concerned Citizens of North Andover and The Bay Circuit Alliance, as well as representatives of People for the Environment (West Boxford), NOCOAL (Littleton), Salisbury Action Committee, and the Bradley's Brook Neighborhood Association (Haverhill).

The representatives discussed plans to form a coalition for the purpose of mounting a broad-based campaign to publicize the environmental and economic impact of waste incineration as well as to promote safer alternatives, such as recycling. The coalition's most immediate concern will be a proposal from Ogden Martin to locate a new high-volume incinerator at The River Walk in Lawrence. Reminiscent of Moro 4000, the garbage barge from Long Island, N. Y., that wandered the seas for five months in search of a friendly port, this incinerator has had a difficult time finding a home. Similar proposals from Ogden Martin have already been rebuffed by concerned citizens of Littleton, Salisbury and Gardener.

Anyone interested in joining or obtaining more information about this effort is invited to call Geoff Davis, president of EAGA, at 475-3825.

Town mails tax bills; due Nov. 1

The town of Andover has mailed real estate tax bills for the second quarter of Fiscal Year 1994.

The bills are due Monday, Nov. 1. Taxes unpaid after that date are subject to interest charges of 14 percent.

Town offices, at 36 Bartlet St., are open Monday through Friday from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Residents can leave tax payments in the white mailbox with blue Town of Andover seal in front of town offices.

If mailed, residents are asked to use the envelope provided and asked not to fold the bill.

The tax collectors' office will be open Monday, Nov. 1, from 6 to 8 p.m. Residents who have not received a bill, or those who have questions should call town offices at 470-3800.

Seminars are on Alzheimer's

The Nevins Family of Services, Alzheimer Family Care Center and the Eastern Massachusetts Alzheimer's Association announce a new Alzheimer caregiver seminar series, beginning Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 7 p.m. at the Nevins Alzheimer Family Care Center. Dr. Andrew Satlin, director of the Memory Diagnostic Clinic at McLean Hospital, will give a "Medical Overview." All seminars are free.

TOWNTALK

A 9-year-old Andover girl will dance in The Ballet Theater of Boston's production of The Nutcracker this Christmas season.

Alysson Slopes, daughter of Thomas Slopes, an Andover police sergeant, and his wife, Nancy, saw an announcement in the Sept. 2 Townsmen that the ballet was looking for "angels, soldiers and mice and children." Alysson, who has taken ballet for three years, went to Boston for the auditions and was chosen for the part of a mouse, according to her father.

Alysson Slopes

"There were a ton of people," Mr. Slopes said.

Alysson said she will play one of 12 mice. "I have to dance and I have to fight the soldiers," she said.

She said getting the part was a little bit tricky.

"We had to do a couple of steps that I've never done before. I don't even know what they were called, but I just followed the teacher," she said.

Those who made it are of varying skill levels, she said.

"Some of them have done it before, some haven't, so it will be mixed," Alysson said.

Alysson will not be paid for her dancing, but that doesn't matter to her. She said the best thing about it is just "being in it and being part of it."

Mr. Slopes said he and his wife went to a parents' meeting in Boston last Sunday to learn more about what was going to be involved.

Alysson will dance in 15 to 18 performances, some of which may be in Springfield or Lowell as well as Boston. She was not sure what her rehearsal schedule will be, but it will probably be more than the one day a week she does regularly.

The Nutcracker will be performed Nov. 26 through Dec. 26 in Boston, Springfield and Lowell. Alysson hasn't been told which dates or where her performances will be, according to her father.

Alysson, a student at Sanborn School, has twin sisters, Joan and Jillian, 2 years and 9 months old. Her grandmother, Bertelle Slopes, also lives with the family here in Andover.

Carol Bateson, CEO of Dec-Tam, 10 Lowell Junction Road, called to tell us that her firm, which removes asbestos and lead paint from buildings, will be on Channel 2's This Old House tonight at 8, removing asbestos shingles from a Victorian house in Belmont. Ms. Bateson said the TV station asked firms if they would like to compete for the slot, Dec-Tam did, and the rest will be history after tonight.

Leona "Lee" Doherty of Andover will be one of thousands who will walk the route of the Boston Marathon, 26.6 miles from Hopkinton to Boston Sunday, to raise funds for the Jimmy Fund, which does cancer research with children. Called The Boston Marathon Jimmy Fund Walk, 5,000 walkers are expected to raise $1 in pledges. It starts at Hopkinton town green at 7 a.m., or for those who want to talk a half marathon, it leaves 11 a.m. from Wellesley High School.

Ms. Doherty is looking for anyone from this area who would like to car-pool. Call her at 475-8095 and leave a message. She is walking because "the Jimmy Fund is a good cause and the money goes where it says it goes."

Also walking, for their second year, are Margot and George Bixby, of Abbot Street. She is a cancer survivor who is known for her volunteer work in the field. Last year the Bixbys each raised more than $500 in pledges.

Rain did little to dampen the spirits and commitment of walkers of all ages at the fourth annual Walk For Elders held in Lawrence under the sponsorship of Elder

Your Dental HEALTH

by Richard D. Hopgood, D.M.D.

BREATHTAKING NEWS

The "morning breath" that nearly all of us experience is produced by odor-causing bacteria in the mouth. These bacteria produce sulfurous compounds (also found in such sulfur-containing foods as garlic) which give rise to bad breath. Normally, oxygen-rich saliva keeps the bacteria that produce mouth odor in check. However, as saliva flows slowly at night, the pH of the mouth shifts from acidic to alkaline, providing a more hospitable environment for bacteria. In addition, at least one-third of all cases of minor halitosis (bad breath) are caused by gum disease. Those same oral bacteria which produce bad breath may cause bone and gum loss. It is a good idea, therefore, to have the dentist check for the causes of bad breath and any possible related conditions.

Choose a family dentist who has a sincere interest in the overall health of his or her patients as well as in their oral health. If you are looking for just such a dentist, we invite you to call us at 475-2431. All oral problems, including bad breath, are dealt with efficiently, effectively and compassionately. For complete dental care for all members of your family, we're here for you at 295 Lowell Street, Rt. 133, with easy access off Rt. 93. Hrs: Mon & Thur 10-8, Tues & Fri and by appointment.

PS: A dietary change away from carbohydrates to protein may also lead to bad breath because odor-causing bacteria rely on protein.

Services of the Merrimack Valley, Marcia Golden of Andover and her dog, Danny Boy, were two of the walkers. More than $15,000 was pledged to benefit nutrition programs and the Elder Care Fund for elders living in the 23 cities and towns of the Merrimack Valley.

Terry O'Reilly, former Boston Bruins star and coach, led the walkers on the 5.5-mile course through North Andover. A group of student athletes from the Merrimack Valley Conference, all team captains, donned T-shirts designed for the event.

Those who didn't attend can still walk at home, the office or in neighborhoods. All outstanding pledges and/or donations that can help feed elders and support them in an emergency can be sent to: ESMV Walk for Elders, 360 Merrimack St., Building 5, Lawrence, Mass. 01843.

Speaking of walks, if you are walking Sunday, Oct. 17 in the Jane Doe Safety Fund Walk for Women's Safety, please let this newspaper know by calling 475-1943. Thousands of people are expected to do the 10K walk beginning at noon at the Hatch Shell on Boston's Esplanade. Participants raise funds to assist battered and at-risk women. Call 617-338-2288 for further information.

Former Andover resident Terry Bartow, his wife, Liz, and their family, of Media, Pa., are mentioned in Child magazine this month. The family consists of two non-disabled children (a 10-year-old

The Bartow family will be featured in a longer article in the November issue of Child.

For the first time in the Pop Warner football league's 35-year history, there is a girl on the gridiron. And, at least according to her coach, there is surprisingly little controversy surrounding her presence.

"The strangest thing about it is to her it's just another sport," said Andy Ellicott, coach of the Central Andover Colts. "And to the people on the team she's just another player."

Christie Cunningham, 14, starts at outside linebacker for the Colts A team and occasionally takes some downs at running back. Last week she threw a complete pass in a 12-0 win over the rival Dolphins.

"I guess for her size and experience she came onto the team with a loss of confidence and enthusiasm," said Coach Ellicott. "She's pretty resilient and has never seemed ostracized. She's always seemed a part of the team."

Mr. Ellicott first saw the 100-pound player at registration before the season.

"I was real excited. I was there when she registered. I turned around and saw a ribbon in one of the registrant's hair," he said. "She seemed like someone who wanted to play the game, not someone who was just trying to prove women are equal to men."

Although everyone on the team knew that one of the players was a girl before Christie showed up for her first practice, Mr.

Ellicott said that no real problems have been created. In fact, one player even told the coach that the boy's older sister idolized Christie for being on the team.

Christie and you like her, you know (her playing's not a statement-making thing," he said. "She just likes football."

If anything, then, Christie's presence has benefited the team.

"It's maybe helped a little bit," said Mr. Ellicott. "Last week I noticed, against the Dolphins, that they were running sweeps to her side. But she held her ground and they learned quickly. It was a futile effort. This isn't a one-woman team.

"Although," he laughed, "technically, I guess it is."

About 30 residents at Memorial Hall Library last Wednesday night, Sept. 29, heard Joshua Miner, of 40 School St. and founder of Outward Bound in the United States, talk about kids and their needs. During the talk, sponsored by Andover's League of Women Voters, Mr. Miner talked about the formation of Outward Bound and about young people's need to feel useful, to feel like a part of what's going on around them, and "the misery of unimportance."

"In my mind, this is the social malignancy of our day," he said.

People gain enormous strength from helping others, instead of thinking about themselves, he said. Youth today beg, "Make use of us," Mr. Miner said.

He talked about violence and creating meaningful programs for kids to get them involved in the community, such as the formation of a volunteer rescue squad. He reiterated a quote that, "The person who has saved a life can never take a life."

Mr. Miner also talked about "shared jeopardy" being a bond for youths and their families and their community.

Joshua Miner

He gave the example of farming as a shared jeopardy for a family. The chores are something the family used to do together, working side by side, the ultimate success or failure of the farm depending on everyone pulling his or her weight.

Today, parents are busy outside their children's lives and try to make up for it by driving the kids to a soccer game or standing on the sidelines watching them play, Mr. Miner said.

"We're not on the field with them."

He called shared jeopardy "a social glue that will keep you together for the rest of your life." Climbing a mountain together is one way to share jeopardy, but Mr. Miner said he didn't have all the answers. It is up to each family to find its own ways.

The League of Women Voters is hosting a number of discussions focusing on teens. The next one is Tuesday, Oct. 12. Contact the League for more information regarding the time and place.

State Rep. Gary Coon, R-Andover, took a trip recently to Simmons Lodge in Ontario,

Canada, with his grandfather, Ward Coon, and his father, Bill Coon. He said they had a "terrific time on the trip and caught mostly bass, although my father did catch one northern pike." Rep. Coon caught the bass in the photo with an artificial mouse on Benson Lake. "Incidentally," he said, "I released the fish back into the lake, which we did to all the fish we caught on the trip."

AVIS plans 100th birthday

by Bud Lewis. Three scavenger hunts on AVIS land will be led by Liz Tentarelli and Rich Hornidge.

The annual AVIS dinner meeting in March will part from the traditional nature slide lecture. Julie Mofford, author of AVIS, A History in Conservation, will write a play to commemorate the centennial, based on one of the early Andover AVIS founders, to be portrayed by Susan Lenoe, a well known Andover storyteller and actress.

Julie Collier from Springfield will present a live "Birds of Prey" demonstration in April at West Parish Church, followed by a walk on the newest land acquisition, West Parish Meadow.

The culmination of the centennial events is planned for Thanksgiving time 1994. A torch walk will be held with the torch passed from AVIS' oldest reservation, Indian Ridge, by older citizens to the newest reservation, West Parish Meadow, by younger citizens. This symbolic event is a fitting closing for AVIS' celebration of 100 years of land conservation.

AVIS wardens continue the constant clean up of the reservations. Maintenance work was done on most of the reservations during the summer. Bill and Cathy Henderson did major work on Purdon, Bill Lewis repaired a bridge on Rocky Hill, Connie Nollett did a great deal of work on Deer Jump and Rich Hornidge and his nephew, Jona King, hacked out a circular trail in the Collins Reservation.

The trails this fall are in fine shape. Walking during these beautiful autumn days is a rare treat. Purple asters combine with bright yellow golden rod and huge cone-shaped clusters of blood red and deep purple berries are vivid spots of color hanging from sumac bushes. The leaves have begun to explode with brilliant reds and yellows.

This is one of the AVIS reservations: Burns Reservation.

Understanding Chiropractic

by Mark F. DeLorenzo, D.C.

WELCOMED POSTURING

The healthy spine is a picture of exquisite balance. Correct alignment of the vertebrae (back bones) calls for the spine to curve gently inward at the neck, and outward at the rib area. By describing a modified S-shape, the spine maintains the head, chest, and pelvis in a centered configuration that balances the weight of the body. If this posture is compromised by rounded shoulders, slumped seated position, or other improper bearing of the body, it is likely to cause weight imbalances that exert strain on the back. With the realization of posture's importance to back health, the chiropractor seeks to align the vertebrae properly and encourage correct posture that will help maintain balance.

Children, especially should be checked for early signs of spinal problems along with those who sit at a desk for long periods of time. October is Spinal Health Month. Please call for more information at DELORENZO CHIROPRACTIC GROUP, 475-5042, for an appointment. We offer natural and safe care for the entire family. Our office is located at 15 Central Street.

P.S. Over time, the strain of poor posture can narrow the spaces between the vertebrae and put added pressure on discs.

Steve Leed and Paula Leed show off some of the jewelry they sell at the new Royal Jewelers and Royal Audio on Main Street.

Royal has arrived!

By Neil Fater

Driving down Main Street, one can't miss the deep purple and green sign that stretches across the facade of Royal Jewelers and Royal Audio. Now the owners of these newly arrived stores are hoping no loyal customers miss this weekend's grand opening.

"We make friends, not just customers," said Steven Leed, co-owner and son of the founder. "We're very consumer friendly."

Thursday, Friday and Saturday Royal Jewelers and Royal Audio will have a private, invitation-only grand opening for its preferred customers. According to Mr. Leed, however, anyone who wishes to attend can stop by before then for an invitation.

"People should sign up for our raffle. We're giving away a Rolex watch and a pair of Gucci watches," he said.

Royal Jewelers will have a number of specialty items on hand and consultants from Steven Lagos Designer Jewelry, Mont Blanc Writing Instruments, and Concord Timepieces will put in an appearance as well. A representative from Bang & Olufsen Audio Equipment will be at Royal Audio. However, perhaps the highlight of the opening will be the presence of the $350,000 "Il Destriero" watch from the International Watch Company Ltd. of Schaffhausen, Switzerland. IWC, originally an American Company founded in Switzerland by Florentine Ariosto Jones, has manufactured only 125 of these watches in celebration of its 125th anniversary.

"We carry a lot of designer lines and high-end lines," said Mr. Leed. "We have the largest selection of pre-owned Rolex watches in New England."

Royal Jewelers was opened in Lawrence almost 50 years ago by Bernard Leed. Though it was primarily a jewelry store at its inception, Royal Jewelry began to branch out into many other areas. In the 1970s, the store management was taken over by his children, Steven and Paula Leed. The elder Mr. Leed died in 1985. Today the store is run by his children and his wife, Sel Leed-Greenspan.

Now, after almost half a century in downtown Lawrence, Royal Jewelers has packed its bags and moved to the center of Andover. The Lawrence store closed its doors last month.

"Basically, we found our clients drove from all over," Paula Leed said of the decision to uproot. "People weren't walking down the street and coming in any more."

According to Ms. Leed, many clients who have moved elsewhere continue to buy from the Royal stores over the phone.

"They'll call me rather than go into a jewelry store in New York or L.A.," she said.

According to Mr. Leed, the new store will have both more free space to make it easier to shop and will have a larger selection of almost all of their previously-carried items. Royal Audio has dropped its line of cameras, but will carry hand-held video equipment.

"Everything is sold, as then, at less than manufacturer's suggested retail price," said Mr. Leed.

The new jewelry store will display 1,800 watches, serve coffee, cappuccino and fruit juice at a bar, and will have private showing areas and purchasing rooms for its high-profile clients, such as athletes and local celebrities. Jewelry and watch repair and jewelry designing can also be done there. Royal

An antique shop in an antique home

By Don Staruk

Park Street Antiques, offering "furnishings, embellishments and oddities," opened Sept. 18 at 65 Park St. in the Dinsmore House, built in 1884.

The house is located on the same side of the street and just behind Park Street Village.

The new store is owned and operated by David Cantone, better known for his job as Andover's parking supervisor, and his wife, Eileen. The couple live in a two-bedroom apartment upstairs from the shop with their son, Dominic, 2 1/2.

The Cantones bought the building in May 1992 after it had been unoccupied for two years. The roof was leaking and it was in dire need of repair. After extensive renovations, which included redoing bathrooms, kitchens, plumbing and electrical work, sanding hardwood floors, painting and wallpapering, the structure now consists of a one-bedroom apartment, the two-bedroom unit the Cantones call home and the two-room, 500-square-foot antique shop.

"Everybody's been very happy. The neighbors have been good and they're glad to see that the building has been put back into shape," Mr. Cantone said.

Mr. Cantone, who describes the merchandise in the store as "Early American, Victorian, country and nostalgia," only started getting into antiques about five years ago.

"It's a quick study if you have the love and interest in it we do," Mr.

Cantone said.

"We read a lot," Ms. Cantone added.

They buy most pieces outright from shopping around on their own, and from people who call them to have them come look at items when the people are cleaning out an attic or preparing for a yard sale.

"Some of it's on consignment," Mr. Cantone said.

The shop usually has chocolates or other candies out for browsers, and classical music playing in the background makes for a comfortable atmosphere.

Mr. Cantone said he gives the people he buys from "a good value," but buys so that he can also pass the items on at a fair price while still making a profit for himself. He said his store targets "anybody who is looking for a unique item to decorate with."

One morning last week Mr. Cantone had just moved out an 1800s Vermont Sheraton dresser he sold for $350. One resident bought an antique Chinese rifle and a Victor Victrola Talking Machine old-style record player. That customer was picking things up so he could pass them on to his children as heirlooms. The Victrola sold for $190.

"I've got many items under $50. I've got items under $10," Mr. Cantone said.

Not everything he sells is necessarily an antique. Some are just "interesting" items.

One item he sold this week was a

Eileen, son, Dominic, and David Cantone sit in the parlor of their home, where their business is located on Park Street.

While most trees are simply changing their colors, the Strawberry Tree in Andover has changed its location, from 9 to 13 Main St. "We doubled our space from the old store and added quite a few new product lines," said Manager Sean Quinn, shown above. Currently the store hours are 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays, and noon to 5 p.m. on Sundays. With the move, however, Mr. Quinn said he expects store hours to be expanding. Fall and Christmas merchandise is arriving there.

will carry a number of furs and has a temperature- and humidity-controlled vault downstairs.

"We're a full furrier in that we also do cleaning and glazing," said Mr. Leed. "We have the equipment to do that right here.

"None of the people work on commission so when someone is explaining something to you their excitement is genuine," said Mr. Leed.

Royal Audio has also expanded and will have five audio/visual rooms. Included in these are a conventional sound room, an electronics and speakers room, a car stereo room, and two lifestyle rooms that Mr. Leed describes as "like walking into your living or family room."

Royal Audio will carry a number of top-line systems and has several new display techniques.

Royal Jewelers and Royal Audio will be open Monday through Wednesday, 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.; Thursday and Friday, 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m.; and Saturday 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. The Saturday of the opening, Royal Jewelers and Royal Audio will be open 9 a.m. to 9 p.m.

Central Street house demolished to make more parking spaces for Andover Bank

Dean Emery and Steve Grover of Kidder Wrecking in New Hampshire stand by as this house at 25 Central St. was demolished last Friday. The property, of approximately 10,000 feet, is owned by Andover Bank, which will make new parking space of it. Lori Teske, vice president of marketing, said the bank is working on a design to expand parking and improve its flow. She said the re-designed parking lot should be ready before the snow falls.

He has ships in bottles, paintings, furniture, a set of old wooden bowling pins, glassware, insect collections, tramp art, which is mostly mahogany carvings mounted on cigar boxes, and more.

"It's got to be old if it's going to be in here. And it's got to have some interest for either a collector or someone who's going to decorate with it," Mr. Cantone said.

For someone decorating a house or a room, an antique holds its value better than a department- or gift-store purchase, Mr. Cantone said.

"And the other thing is, you buy an antique and you've got a conversation piece," he added.

Park Street Antiques will be open "basically weekends," Saturdays, 10 a.m.-5 p.m., and Sundays, 1-5 p.m. It will be open at night when Mr. Cantone is babysitting, and "otherwise whenever the 'Open' flag is up." The Cantones also plan to have wine and cheese out for browsers during extended holiday hours.

AROUND ANDOVER SCHOOLS

Photos by Lisa Adelsberger
The Andover High marching band and color guard won its division in its first competition of the year Sunday, when it co-hosted the event on Lovely Field. [See story on page 20.]

AHS marching band members gather around for a quick pep talk after performing in the competition Sunday afternoon. They eventually came in first in every category: best music, best color guard, best percussion and best drum major (sophomore Kate O'Donnell).

West Middle School's West Fest carnival packed in the crowds last weekend, with games, rides, food and fun. Here Al Ross is about to deliver the selected stuffed-animal prize to yet another winner.

Hanging out at West Fest and enjoying the scene during the weekend were Rebecca McMahon, in the foreground, and Sarah Henry, Christine Sherry, Chris Kyslowsky and Tracey Geldart.

West Elementary holds two community suppers every school year. The school held a sub supper Friday night, organized again this year by Donna Cretian, PTO chairwoman. Here students Holly, Heather and Justin Deltaan enjoy the sub platters and tonic with their parents, Jennifer Deltaan and Bob Kisiel.

At the school-wide sub supper last Friday night, many West Elementary parents got their first glimpse of the new mural on the cafeteria wall. It was painted during the summer by professional decorators from Andover, working from students' drawings of undersea life.

PLUMBING

The plumbing is one of your home's more mysterious systems. Most of the pipes are hidden in the wall, and when you have a problem, you will probably have to call in a plumber. Because plumbers charge hefty rates, prospective buyers are frequently frightened away by evidence of leaky pipes, ceiling stains below showers, or antiquated bathroom fixtures.

If you are planning to sell, it is a good idea to make sure your plumbing problems are solved before you place your home on the market. After the plumber finishes his work, you should take care of any cosmetic damage that leaks may have caused. Are plumbing repairs cost-effective? Most sales agreements contain clauses calling for all systems, including plumbing, to be in working order. If you have a problem, you will probably have to repair it before the closing anyway. Doing it ahead of time eliminates plumbing as an issue in the property's sale. Having your plumbing in top condition will also make your home seem well cared for, and this makes it more attractive to potential buyers.

If there's a move in your future, the real estate specialists at Century 21 Carriage House are ready to serve you. Feel free to visit our office at 10 High Street, or phone us at 475-1243.

Dylan Pritchett, "The Storyteller," visited West Elementary fourth- and fifth-graders Sept. 28. Surrounding "The Storyteller" are fifth-grade students Millie Gerstein and John Iorio. In the back row are Cynthia McDermott, business events coordinator from Marshalls Inc., and PTO cultural events chairperson Peggy Coleman. Ms. Coleman organizes cultural events for both West Elementary and West Middle schools. The performance was made possible through a grant from Marshalls Inc. Through storytelling the students learned about African-American history from the 18th and 19th centuries.

AHS revises its grade-promotion guidelines

By Chris Stamm

The School Committee on Tuesday, Sept. 21, approved a change in grade-promotion requirements at Andover High School. This reform was developed by Assistant Principal Steve Richardson to identify, on a yearly basis, students who may not meet graduation requirements.

The idea began as a proposal in the AHS house government, where the consensus was that the idea needed attention. However, the house government does not have the power to make changes in such policy. On Jan. 29 of this year, the proposal was passed by a vote of 36-0, with five abstentions.

The proposal read, "Students should pass a minimum number of credits at the end of each year in order to move to the next grade level. Students unable to meet the standards listed below should be kept in the same grade level for another year because it would be misleading for students to think they could meet graduation requirements at the end of their senior year."

In essence, this proposal made it easier for the administration to be aware of students who are in jeopardy of graduating within four years, as the student must meet yearly requirements.

However, the proposal merely developed guidelines to give students an idea of their graduation status, said administrators. The proposal also states that, "Any student who may not be promoted has the right to ask for a hearing with the principal to explain the circumstances that caused the failure of so many subjects."

While the students of AHS worked to pass the policy, many have mixed feelings. "I think (the proposal) is good because it forces students to get an education, but it can also be bad because it may force students to do things that they aren't capable of doing," said AHS student Bob Lord of 45 West Parish Drive. However, other students regard the proposal more optimistically.

"I think that instead of getting a wake-up call junior year to find out that they won't graduate, students will be more aware for all four years of high school," said AHS senior Beth Segal of 3 Granada Way.

Chris Stamm, a senior at Andover High School, writes for the Townsman.

South celebrates 35th birthday

By Christine McCarthy

Friday, Sept. 10, was a day for special celebration at South Elementary School as the faculty, staff and students commemorated the school's 35th birthday. At a special schoolwide assembly, Eileen Woods, South's new principal, talked about how "birthdays are special times." On this school birthday, they remembered the 15,000 students who had entered South's doors since it opened in 1958.

Ms. Woods discussed the love of learning common to all children and that everyone at South is there to help them and stressed the importance of hard work. She described the caring environment that everyone at South works to create, a place full of people open to others and appreciative of their differences.

Ms. Woods then introduced several fifth-graders. Dianna

South celebrates 35th

Finegold read a special birthday poem handed down in her family. Others expressed their wishes for South: David Rosenberg wished that South's people be "happy and stick together"; Christine George wished that "students show caring and kindness"; Ricky Umlah wished that they "accept others and take responsibility for their own behavior"; and Adam Perry wished for South to "be a part of the Andover community for 100 years."

Peter Marino led the salute to the flag and Toni La Barre led the song "Happy Birthday" to South. It concluded with recognition of students whose birthdays were that day or that weekend.

South's birthday celebration continued at lunch, where each child and staff member received a piece of special birthday cake, baked for the event by South's cafeteria staff.

AHS marching band co-hosts competition, scores division win

Even the rain couldn't stop the AHS marching band from bringing home a win at its first competition of the year co-hosted by Andover and Lynnfield high schools on Lovely Field.

Andover competed against Lynnfield in Division I and, with a score of 66.1, came in first in every category: best music, best colorguard, best percussion and best drum major (sophomore Kate O'Donnell).

Methuen High School came in first in their division with a score of 61.0.

Practicing for their new show,

"Passages to the East," has reportedly been nonstop and their efforts paid off. The highlight of the show happens at the end when the colorguard dances out concealed under a 90-foot-long red-and-yellow dragon, made by hand by members of the AHS Band Parents Association. President Ed Kelley and Mike Bruno built the frame and Susan Bruno designed the dragon, assisted by Jan Litchfield, Diane Dahl and Wendy Gillespie.

The band's next competition will be held Sunday, Oct. 17, at Reading High School.

Andover High School's marching band came in first place in Sunday's competition on Lovely Field. The band drum corps members are: (front row) Amy Cronin, Anthony Risitano, Karen Liu and Albert Kwon; (back row) Chris Schardin, Erik Froburg, Joe McFarland, Peter Furnari, Ken Gable, assistant band director, Mark Reppucci, AHS band director, and Ben Weiner.

Business Women's Network offers 'A Day of Enrichment'

The Merrimack Valley Business Women's Network of the Greater Lawrence YWCA will sponsor its first annual women's conference, called "A Day of Enrichment," on Thursday, Oct. 21, at the Franciscan Center in West Andover.

The conference begins with registration at 8:30 a.m. Coffee and Danish will be served. Participants will be able to attend up to a dozen workshops and panel discussions, which begin at 9 a.m., with a break for a boxed lunch at noon. Workshops will continue in the afternoon.

Katherine M. Campbell, Ph.D., of Acton will be keynote speaker. A professor of American history, she will speak on "Women and Community Service: An Illustrious Tradition."

Katherine M. Campbell

Through photographs and charts, she will cover the period from the 19th century when the image of women as morally purer than men resulted in their involvement in public-service careers as reformers, social workers and teachers.

She will also address the employment trends for women, showing entry of women into traditionally male careers and the secondary market of underpaid part-timers.

A futuristic glimpse of women will include the task of revitalizing community commitments in the 1990s while recognizing modern responsibilities.

To obtain a registration form or for more information, call the Greater Lawrence YWCA at 687-0331.

Andover boy is in Crohn's & Colitis walkathon

Michael Repucci of Andover will be a Youth Ambassador representing the Crohn's & Colitis Foundation of America in the first Solvay Pharmaceutical Pace Setter Walk. Michael is 11 and attends Doherty Middle School. The walk will take place Sunday, Oct. 10, at noon at Artesani Park in Boston, along the Charles River.

Michael has Crohn's disease. He is doing very well now, according to the organizers, and would like to help by representing the other children who are too sick to participate. If you would like to sponsor him or be on his team, call (617) 449-0324.

There are many other volunteer opportunities associated with this event besides walking, recruiting and sponsoring walkers. Call (617) 449-0324.

The foundation is a nonprofit health organization dedicated to finding a cure for Crohn's disease and colitis.

Tewksbury police had pursued the car, which was reported stolen from Woburn, from Route 495 northbound to Route 28 south. State police were approaching northbound on Route 28 when the stolen car crashed into the aluminum light pole while apparently trying to make the right turn onto Windsor Street. The Tewksbury cruiser then crashed into the rear of the stolen vehicle, with the front of the cruiser going under the stolen car.

The Tewksbury officer, Robert Budryk, was treated for minor cuts and bruises. The cruiser's air bag had deployed, according to witnesses at the scene.

One occupant of the stolen car was injured at the scene and two fled. One of those two was caught by Andover officers William Wallace and John Pathiakakis near 53 Poor St. The other was caught nearby by state police.

Drugs and related paraphernalia were allegedly found in the car, by state police.

Robert Lorenz, 40, of Manchester, N.H., identified as the driver of the car, faced the same charges plus failure to stop for a police officer and a Lowell warrant for previous drug charges.

Some of the handsomest peaches that we have seen this year were left on our desk this week by Benjamin Boynton, who raised them from seed. They were as palatable as handsome.

Editor of the Townsman:

Why can't Andover patrons have better accommodations on the street railway? This is a question which is heard almost every hour in the day, and it is not merely a question either, but a complaint, or perhaps, as it would be more commonly called, righteous "kicking." The half-hour system now in vogue is a very poor attempt to accommodate this end of the road.

The African Native Choir from Kaffirland which will appear here in Town Hall, Saturday, Oct. 21, is composed of 15 natives of South Africa, representing seven distinct tribes. It is their first appearance in America after a most successful tour of Great Britain and the provinces. The object is to obtain funds for the promotion of the technical education of Kaffires and thus is purely a missionary object. It is the only organization of its kind in the world.

The Lawrence Prohibitionists will have a rally Saturday evening, Oct. 14, with speeches, songs, and readings on the programme. Oct. 27 they expect Mr. and Mrs. Beveridge, the Nebraska songsters, to sing and able speakers.

A real live deer was seen in Scotland District last Sunday. To see a live deer there is perhaps nothing remarkable, but when one of those pretty, graceful quadrupeds is seen bounding over walls and through the fields, it is quite a rare sight for the inhabitants of that part of the town.

'No pharmacy' Task force report is just a first step toward inclusion

Ms. Lyman presented the findings of the subcommittee to the School Committee before that body's discussion and vote. The findings focused on how to alter and augment the health education currently in schools to increase AIDS awareness and made no recommendation regarding condom availability. The committee discussed health educational additions and, following their rejection of the condom availability proposals, voted to act on the committee's findings.

"We keep giving lip service to education here," said Dr. Richard Olans, a task force member who said he wanted this issue given equal weight to that of contraceptive availability. "But their major recommendation is about (education). Education must be recognized."

The motion to make condoms available in school was proposed by Mary Lyman and seconded by Susan Jenkins, but found no further support. Ms. Jenkins made a lengthy statement outlining her reasoning before the vote.

"According to our risk survey, 38 percent of our students are sexually active. That is over 400 students," said Ms. Jenkins. "I want them to be able to grow up despite the mistakes that they are making. Unfortunately HIV doesn't allow for mistakes."

Ms. Jenkins said that unlike with other more-historic problems caused by premature sexual activity, being HIV positive has no quick solution.

"If you are infected, it is a death sentence," she said. "End of story."

"The message is be responsible for your behavior. I would state that sexual activity is a mistake but I must be realistic and acknowledge that, just as in past generations, teen-age sexual activity exists."

"But I think we are sending them a mixed message," Bill Huston said in response. Mr. Huston said he felt as if the committee would be hypocritical in saying, "We don't want you to do it but if you do, go down to the nurse's office" and get a condom.

Mr. Muller said he was influenced by "the people who said condom availability would change their behavior." The AIDS Risk Behavior survey results listed 20.4 percent of respondents as saying that yes, they would be more likely to become active, 53.5 percent as saying no, they would not, and 26.1 as already being sexually active.

Chairwoman Susan Dalton said she does not think the role of the schools is a pharmaceutical one. "But I do think we must analyze our educational component."

Following their decision on condom availability, the committee unanimously carried a motion to have the superintendent and the health officers of the school system review the subcommittee findings and report back to the committee before implementation of change. Any changes that were in the works before Tuesday's decision will not be halted.

"Quite frankly, in all the time I've been on this committee I've never had a parent (complain about Andover's health education)," said Ms. Dalton.

The subcommittee suggested the schools create workshops on parent-child communication about sexuality and related-disease infection, repeat the youth risk behavior survey to spot new trends, establish a bank of resources, consider moving condom instruction to a lower grade level, enact ongoing staff education in universal precaution, and implement a hazardous waste disposal system in all schools.

The subcommittee found that the health education curriculum already addressed a number of key areas, including offering age-appropriate HIV/AIDS education and current and factual information.

McQuillan, superintendent of schools, said to a packed room of residents who had hoped to speak. "It's an important starting point."

The School Committee said early in the meeting that there was simply not time to hear from all who wished to speak. Consequently, the committee has scheduled forums for Tuesday, Oct. 19, and Tuesday, Nov. 2, for town input on the mainstreaming topic. (Townsmen will report time and place when School Committee makes the decision.)

Tuesday, the task force spoke about the inclusive model, taking turns talking about "developing classroom communities that fit the needs of all," classes where "all get individualized attention," and a system that "fully includes all students in mainstreaming." They used words such as "sensitive, flexible, adaptive" in describing their inclusive classrooms.

The task force recommends:

- The School Committee and school administration strongly affirm a commitment to the Inclusive Model;

- Inclusion teams be established in each school during the current school year;

- Smaller class sizes;

- That 10 percent of the schools budget be spent on staff development;

- That a review of current assessment, grading practices and reporting procedures should be taken;

- A review of grouping patterns be conducted, and more.

In appearing before the committee, the Mainstreaming Task Force relayed the information and experience they had gathered and then supported a continued movement to an inclusive model. The reported experiences, all positive, included observations made at other schools and the acceptance of a child with Down's syndrome in the Andover system.

"An inclusive system strives," said Pat Pakos, of the task force, "to welcome those with different abilities into their lives. Inclusion is fundamental to learning about the way life truly is."

"What we are promoting in the Andover schools (now) is the spirit of competition not cooperation," said Judy Lugas, a parent. "Andover should take steps toward that goal" of inclusion.

School Committee chairwoman Susan Dalton said that when she originally read the report, "the first word I wrote at the top of the report was 'utopia.'" She said she was concerned with financial matters and that the cost of such changes had not been looked into adequately. "No one is going to argue that we can't do better, but I don't want to throw the baby out with the bath water. I would be lighting the fuse on a very heavily loaded rocket."

"You've been asked to take on a mammoth task," committee member Mary Lyman said to the task force. "You were not asked to be the ways and means committee. I would hate for people to think that this would be the end."

Ms. Lyman said many details still needed to be looked into and that there is probably another year's worth of work ahead for the task force.

"Much of the groundwork has been laid. There is much to do but we have started," said Dorothy McCormick, a Sanborn School teacher who is on the task force. She said the schools need to increase the use of such programs as Paidela seminars, cooperative learning, and process writing "rather than change direction. This is something we must continue to move forward with."

Mary French, special education coordinator and a member of the task force, was one of those who visited other schools that have greater inclusion in comparable communities. "The enthusiasm of the students was obvious. They practically ran into the room," she said of a Wayland science class. The teacher "noted this was perhaps the most diverse class she had ever taught."

Other teachers and administrators in Wayland told Ms. French and other Andover visitors, "We don't believe in failing students. We believe in challenging them. You really have to try to fail here."

"I respect your opinions and your sincerity," said Dick Muller, School Committee member. "But I also have feelings this report on the high school is something we have to focus on at length."

Mr. Muller said he wants to be sure the task force did not focus predominately on the elementary schools and that the report is balanced.

"I don't understand why we are so afraid of this document," said School Committee Secretary William Huston of the task force report. "I don't see any child being punished by this document."

"My (observations) are not to throw cold water on you," said Ms. Dalton to the task force. But she said she is not afraid to avoid jumping on the bandwagon. "I won't get backed into that corner," she said. "Don't tell me I'm going to create utopia. I don't have the money."

"Some of the comments were unnecessarily negative," Ms. Lyman said Wednesday.

"I'm expecting that this will move forward in a very judicious manner. I understand and want to have input from the community," said committee member Susan Jenkins. "It's a solid system, (though) it may need some fine tuning."

Town leaf composting site opens Oct. 21

The town's leaf composting site on Bald Hill will open for the season on Thursday, Oct. 21.

Residents can dump leaves, grass clippings and shredded yard waste at the site, according to Dennis Sheehan, administrative assistant at the Department of Public Works. Tree branches and limbs are not allowed to be dumped at the site and Mr. Sheehan said residents who have tree limbs to get rid of would have to call a private disposal company.

The composting facility will be open 8 a.m.-4 p.m. Thursday, Friday and Saturday each week through Saturday, Dec.

Skin cancer clinic is free

The American Cancer Society, in conjunction with Boston University Medical Center's Skin Oncology Program, will conduct two free skin cancer screenings for men age 50 and over from Lowell, Lawrence, Andover, Tewksbury, Methuen and Haverhill who do not have insurance or a regular physician.

The first free skin screening will be held at Lawrence General Hospital on Saturday, Oct. 16, from 9 a.m. to noon.

The second will be held at Holy Family Hospital Cancer Management Center on Saturday, Nov. 13, from 9 a.m. to noon.

Call the American Cancer Society at 454-0900 for an appointment.

Selectmen call Nov. 8 Special Town Meeting

The vote was unanimous by the five members. The Special Town Meeting will cost the town about $5,000, according to Randy Hanson, town clerk.

The meeting will be held at 7 p.m. at the Collins Center. Since there is no longer any quorum requirement, the meeting should start on time. The Department of Community Services is looking into whether high school students, who have provided babysitting service for town meetings in the past, will be able to provide that service again for the Nov. 8 meeting.

The warrant was opened Monday night and will close on Thursday, Oct. 14, at 4:30 p.m. Dennis Teves, of 8 Mohawk Drive, took papers out Tuesday with plans to submit a warrant article to abolish school bus fees. He needs 100 signatures and said Monday night he could use help getting the signatures.

No other papers for warrant articles had been taken out by Wednesday morning and town officials were unsure what, if any, other articles the town would have on the warrant.

The last day to register to vote and be able to take part in the Special Town Meeting is Friday, Oct. 29. The town clerk's office will be open until 8 p.m. on Oct. 29 for that purpose.

The warrant will be published in the Townsmen on Oct. 21. Finance Committee Reports should be mailed out on Monday, Nov. 1.

Police officials pitch for reaccreditation

Police Chief James Johnson made a pitch to selectmen Monday night looking for their support of his department's involvement in the re-accreditation process.

The department first earned accreditation in 1988 and is one of only seven departments in the state to have gotten accredited. It's now time for the five-year accreditation renewal and the chief wants the town's support both morally and financially.

The re-accreditation process, which involves a great amount of record keeping and reporting by the department, costs about $22,000 to complete. That money comes out of the police department budget. Part of the money pays a portion of the salary of Sgt. Brian Pattullo, the accreditation officer, for the time he spends working on the program. Most of the rest of it is for overtime paid to patrolmen's union members and other members of the force to attend accreditation meetings.

The last time the department was accredited patrolmen were not included in the process, which resulted in the union not accepting many of the policies outlined in the program and caused discontent among the members of the force. That is not happening this time, according to Sgt. Pattullo.

"We've had some real positive feedback," Sgt. Pattullo said.

Proven standards

Accreditation gives department members standards to live up to that have been tested and proven, the chief said. He cited the recent Rodney King beating case in Los Angeles and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms fiasco with the Branch Davidian sect in Waco, Texas, as examples of why standards and procedures need to be followed.

Being accredited helps the town be more easily defensible in the case of liability lawsuits, but that financial benefit is difficult to tally. It's hard to tell how many suits were never filed against the town because lawyers knew the town would be hard to discredit, according to Sgt. Pattullo.

Accreditation policies cover everything from personnel and administration issues to the what equipment is to be issued, the handling of prisoners and use of technical services.

Chief Johnson told selectmen that Andover has been acknowledged for leadership in several areas, including twice for the futuristic capability of its water treatment plant, which now gets visitors from around the country and the world. He said he would like the town's police department to remain a respected department looked on as a role model for other departments.

Sgt. Pattullo said accreditation exists to strengthen crime prevention through development of law enforcement standards, and that it provides the department with standard operating procedures for consistent self assessment. Review procedures set up under accreditation helps the department focus on changing crime trends, such as an increased number complaints in West Andover and an increase in calls during the 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. shift. The department can then shift resources to address those problems.

The community oriented policing, in which officers are assigned to the same area of town for two or three years at a time, was a result of accreditation and has been very successful, according to Sgt. Pattullo. People get to know the police and the police get to know them.

Having several officers work with students in the schools is also part of the accreditation program. Where before the kids only got to know one officer, the designated safety officer, they now get to know several officers on a one-on-one basis.

Selectmen Gerald Silverman questioned the chief's opinion that accreditation was the wave of the future, given that only four of the seven accredited departments in the state have been reaccredited. But Chief Johnson said the legislature recently approved funding for an accreditation director for the state and the states of New Hampshire and New York have accreditation standards.

Buzz Stapczynski, town manager, has estimated the savings to the town from accreditation as being at least equal to the $23 expense that it is estimated reaccreditation will cost the town, about $1,000 more than the $22,000 cost of the program.

"One lawsuit would wipe out that $22,000 without any problem," Sgt. Pattullo said.

"I think we save at least that," Selectman Charles Wesson said.

Dr. Larsen said it would be more costly to have a flimsy operation.

"If it were even costing a little money, I think I would be inclined to keep accreditation," Dr. Larsen said.

"It would be a real shame if we do not follow through on the reaccreditation," Chief Johnson said.

Fire Protection Week at Central Station

The fire department will host an open house at the Central Fire station on North Main Street this Saturday as part of its celebration of Fire Prevention Week. The open house will be from 10 a.m.-2 p.m.

"Everyone is invited," Chief Harold Hayes told selectmen Monday night.

Firefighters will perform mock rescues using the Jaws-of-Life hydraulic tool on an old car, demonstrate CPR and the use of a heart defibrillator, show safety videos and handout fire safety brochures along with doughnuts and cider.

Inclusion: Take it slowly

Tuesday night's presentation at the School Committee meeting by the task force on inclusion in the schools was a first step. Repeat, first step.

More than 100 people, most of them parents, jammed into the School Committee room, spilling out into the hall, sitting on the floor, to hear the discussion on inclusion — mixing up all ability levels of kids at all schools. Currently, the elementary and middle schools in Andover have mixed ability classes; the high school has mostly leveling — ability grouping.

The task force, made up of teachers, administrators and parents, met twice a month for a year to answer Superintendent Mark McQuillan's charge: Find out what it would take to make Andover's schools fully inclusive by the year 2000.

Wait a minute. Who said that's what we want?

Wisely, the School Committee has scheduled two forums on inclusion — Tuesday, Oct. 19, and Tuesday, Nov. 2, place and time to be announced. The subject for Oct. 19 is leveling and ability grouping; the subject for Nov. 2 is inclusion, although school board chairwoman Susan Dalton said the subjects for each forum will be "flexible."

The task force's presentation Tuesday of their material, called "Winners All, A Call for Andover Inclusive Schools," showed the group had worked hard on their charge. They made a few specific recommendations: that the schools become all inclusive (no grouping at any level), that classes systemwide be smaller and that 10 percent of the school budget be set aside for staff development. That's some major change and expense coming from just one year's study.

We are glad Ms. Dalton pointed out that this report is just a beginning. We agree with committee member Dick Muller, that we should question Dr. McQuillan's charge to the task force, since the group seemed to begin with the conclusion that inclusion is a good thing. The group seems not to have researched the negative aspects of inclusion.

While we believe inclusion generally is a good model, this community should not adopt a major change for its schools before it thoroughly studies all aspects of the proposed change.

The work has just begun.

By Don Staruk

I went for a walk in the woods downtown last Sunday.

That statement in itself would seem to be an oxymoron, a contradiction in terms, but it's not when the downtown is Andover's.

The Shawsheen River, and a corridor of marsh and woodland populated with birds, reptiles and larger animals commonly found in more remote areas, winds through the center of Andover, largely unseen and unused. And that's exactly the point representatives of the Andover Trails Committee, Bay Circuit Alliance and National Park Service wanted to get across when they invited Perry Colmore, editor of the Townsmen, and myself on a walk along the Shawsheen River from the Horn Bridge on Central Street to Shawsheen Square last Sunday afternoon.

Al French, a member of the Bay Circuit Alliance; Liz Tentarelli, chairwoman of the Andover Trails Committee; and Steve Golden, Andover resident and northeast region director for the National Park Service, were our guides. They are just a few of the many residents in town who want to not only protect the Shawsheen River, but to turn it into a recreational resource. They envision a protected green corridor along the river with a paved bike/hike/walk trail open to everyone. They compare it to a similar trail that recently opened in Lexington, and one being completed around Casco Bay in downtown Portland, Maine.

"We just have enormous potential here that hasn't been realized," Mr. Golden said. "What we're trying to do here is describe the vision of what this could be."

Helping create such resources throughout the Northeast is a big part of Mr. Golden's job for the NPS, but the Shawsheen project is special to him because he lives here.

A hiking/mountain biking trail, although not paved, already exists from Dale Street in Ballardvale to the Horn Bridge, about 1 1/2 miles, mostly on property controlled by the Conservation Commission or Andover Village Improvement Society. Eventually the trail could follow the Shawsheen for the last four miles from Haverhill Street to the Merrimack River and connect to the proposed Merrimack River Trail, which may one day lead from Lowell to Newburyport. But for now, the Andover group would like to focus their energy on the "heart" of the Shawsheen trail, the approximately two-mile section from the Horn Bridge to Shawsheen Village.

Part of the reason for the focus on this section now is because of the activity around the old mill buildings in Dundee Park and on Stevens Street. Pentucket Medical Associates, of Haverhill and North Andover, is negotiating to buy the Dundee Park property off Essex Street, and Bertram Paley, owner of the former Marland Mills buildings on Stevens Street, is in the process of applying for permits to develop his two properties on either side of the

Let's be realistic

Editor, Townsmen:

I am responding to last week's letter from Helen Taylor ["Abstinence is the best program for students," page 35], in which she spoke out against condom distribution at Andover High School and advocated the use of an abstinence-based program instead. Although this type of program probably would "best reflect the desire of most parents for their high-schoolers," the issue at hand is not what is best for the parents.

As a senior at Andover High, I can honestly say that if a student wants to have sex, he/she will, regardless of whether condoms are distributed or not. Given this fact, wouldn't you rather have condoms available to your child in this situation than to have them run the risk of AIDS and unwanted pregnancy? Of course, most parents do not want to encourage their child's sex life, but the purpose of distributing condoms at the high school is to help them.

Being a student myself, I can attest to the fact that we are not as ignorant as many believe us to be. We are certainly not shallow enough to think that having condoms available at school means we should go out and have sex. Trust me.

An abstinence-based program definitely seems ideal, but it is also unrealistic. Yes, we (parents and students alike) are all scared of the risks we are presently up against, but turning your back on reality and pretending that an abstinence-based program would work isn't the answer. It is high time for many parents of Andover to stop thinking about what is best for themselves and to start thinking about what is best for their children.

Town's all set with bagels

Editor, Townsmen:

I live in town, which allows me the unique opportunity to stroll downtown and visit the various merchants Andover has to offer. I consider myself somewhat of an expert on the various businesses as I have watched many open, only to close shortly afterwards. I can safely say there are no less than eight establishments where one can buy bagels. There seems to be an equal number of stores where one can buy earrings and greeting cards. So, basically, I'm all set for breakfast and gifts for friends and relatives with ears. It is the rest of life I have the problem with.

Regular folk who raise families often need everyday things, like a spool of thread, buttons, a nail or even a hammer to pound it in the wall. On occasion, I have needed emergency things for soiled or unhappy toddlers and had only designer items to choose from.

The latest addition offers me the grand opportunity of walking into town to buy a fur coat. My prayers have been answered!

With all the town meetings, ordinances, rules and regulations (I don't even take up a valued parking space), do the leaders of Andover have a plan for this town?

Perhaps Andover's shops do attract some people who are looking for designer food, clothes and earrings, but I find I visit them much less and drive to the nearest store offering a variety of normal, mundane, down-to-earth merchandise.

Priest takes on R. Graber's letter

Editor, Townsmen:

I must confess that I am the "religious" mentioned by Richard Graber in his letter to the editor in the Sept. 23 edition of the Townsmen. ["He says no to this meeting," page 35.] Actually I am not a "religious" in the accurate meaning of the term, but a priest of the Archdiocese of Boston who happens to hold a master's degree in biology. I admit also that I eat steak, butter and ice cream as well as smoke my pipe. To equate these modest pleasures with behavior which can lead to HIV infection and AIDS is a logical nexus which boggles my mind.

My professional training allows me, I hope, to interpret statistical data. I know of no study which identifies pipe smoking as an agent of death. No doctor has ever advised me to "say no" to my pipe. I am aware, however, of studies which show that AIDS education programs involving the distribution of condoms are related to higher rates of adolescent sexual activity. On the other hand, the Postponing Sexual Involvement Program in the Atlanta school system, which attempted to develop skills "to say no" in its students, dramatically lowered the sexual activity of those who took part. Isn't anyone willing to give our young people credit for dignity, self respect and personal discipline? The Atlanta program found that 72 percent of those who were sexually active attributed their behavior to "social pressure," not thundering hormones. At an international conference on AIDS which was held at the Vatican in 1989 and which was attended by experts from all over the world who were of all religious faiths, philosophies and ideologies, there was only one universally shared conviction: The key to reversing the tide of AIDS would be found only in modification of human behavior patterns, not in mechanical devices. Let's give our children the challenge and motivation to change their behavior and support them in the effort.

I attended the meeting in question because I love young people and I was there to support them. I did not speak. I do not know why Mr. Graber singled me out for special comment. I wonder if I would have been mentioned if I was not wearing a Roman collar. I am sure that it's irrelevant that I smoke a pipe, but I will be glad to "say no to tobacco" if the students of Andover High School "say no to sex."

river. A third key property in this section is the Redman Card Co. property on the southwest side of the Shawsheen River at Essex Street and Red Spring Road.

Although the town already owns several sections of property along this section of the river, gaining access to the rest of the properties will have to be done through a combination of land acquisitions and obtaining rights-of-way, both of which are going to require broad support of the community.

"The thing that will make this happen is support, action from boards and support from residents," Mr. French said.

He cautioned that cooperation from the developers will require the town to work with them and for compromises to be made, and said that it will be important that residents support deals that are negotiated.

"It needs support. It needs enough people to say, 'This is a good deal for the town,'" Mr. French said.

"We need a constituency for this," Mr. Golden said.

According to very preliminary plans, the trail could follow the west side of the river from the Horn Bridge north, dropping down along side the railway trestle into the woods. A bridge along side the existing railroad bridge could carry users over the Shawsheen, then the trail would plunge back into the woods, passing between the river and St. Augustine's Cemetery in a setting that could easily be five miles from the nearest road.

Approaching Essex Street, the trail would have to either cross the river again and go onto what is now the Redman Card Co. property at the old footbridge, or go up onto the Dundee Park property via a right of way, because the mill buildings there go right down to the river.

We canoed the next section, from Essex Street to Stevens Street, where the river widens before dropping over the dam and passing through the former Marland Mills property. (Thanks to Ken Tentarelli and Kathy French for portaging our canoes.) We trekked the west side of the mills property in the heavily wooded area just below Cassimere Street, then were back down to the river before coming out onto North Main Street. From there the trail skirts the Shawsheen Plaza parking lot and goes back into a heavy woods along the winding river to Penguin Park on Burnham Road. There the trail leads across the edge of the soccer fields and back to the river for the finale through a beautifully-groomed, town-owned park and finishing up at the soccer field on Balmoral Street.

The engineering specifics, such as what type of surface the trail should have, how wide it should be, how much of a grade should be allowed on the trail and how much work can be done in the wetlands buffer zone, can be dealt with later. Those are obstacles that can be overcome, according to Mr. Golden. Getting the greenway open to public access is the "nub of the problem," he said, and a lack of support from the community would be a far greater obstacle.

Federal funding is available for the project through a new federal law (ISTEA) aimed at creating alternative transportation paths and environmentally related projects, Mr. Golden said, but obtaining that funding would depend a lot on the community's commitment to the project. Part of a $1 million fund the Conservation Commission has available to it for land acquisitions could also be used to buy some of the properties in question.

Mr. Golden talked about the "immense popularity" of the recently completed Lexington bike trail and said that trail has had a very positive effect in the neighborhoods it passes through.

Along with recreational uses such as canoeing, jogging, walking, roller skating, picnicking or just sitting in the greenway itself, the Shawsheen trail could provide biking and walking access for students headed to West Middle and the High schools, a way for residents of the proposed assisted-living apartments at Marland Mills to get up town and for others to be able to walk or bike to the commuter rail station at Railroad Street.

The Andover Trails Committee is really the energy behind the Shawsheen Greenway project, according to Mr. Golden, and the committee would like to see a greater involvement on the part of the community. Advocates for the Shawsheen trail know they have a lot of work to do garnering support for their vision.

"We see this as a campaign really. It's going to take a long time," Mr. Golden said.

If it doesn't succeed at first, they will try again, he said.

"We'll be back later. We'll guarantee it."

Senior responds

Editor,
Townsmen:

Your "Senior Citizens: Please listen to us" editorial piece [Sept. 30, page 34] reminded me of my third-grade teacher. She used to "verbally chastise" us whenever she thought we were not doing as she wished.

Since I wish not to "editorially debate" with your newspaper, I will simply say that I think your young reporter was in error when he wrote about the senior citizen subject.

Being so young and inexperienced, he may not have realized that, for some of us, filling out yet another questionnaire was just too much. Et cetera, et cetera.

Takes to task task force

Editor,
Townsmen:

When I was asked to be part of a task force that would make recommendations regarding the concept of inclusion, I agreed to participate. Our group was to address seven questions that composed the mainstreaming/inclusion charge. This was a comprehensive charge that began with the premise, "To what extent can Andover, as a system move toward a full inclusion model by the year 2000?" While I felt somewhat surprised that Andover had decided on movement toward an inclusion model to any degree, I felt that the responsibility of the task force would be to evaluate the efficacy of such a direction. My assumption was that we would seek and review research that had been conducted regarding the successful and unsuccessful aspects of an inclusionary environment in the classroom. Our task force was provided with a number of articles and abstracts detailing what successful programs had done to implement a more inclusive education. I was impressed with the ability of several school systems to completely alter some of their more traditional educational goals. These systems responded to the unique variations in students' educational needs, creating more flexible instructional options. The philosophical concepts underlying inclusive education, including the idea that all children deserve to receive an individualized and appropriate education in their neighborhood school, seemed to embody the best in educational objectives.

My reservations came when I realized that the task force was not evaluating the concept of inclusion in a balanced fashion. We read very few accounts of the failures of systems attempting implementation of inclusion. The examination of inclusion/mainstreaming was enlarged to include the reduction or elimination of tracking at the high school level. I began to feel that I had misapprehended the original purpose of our task force.

Therefore, I cannot support totally the conclusions as put forth in "Winners All: A Call for Andover Inclusive Schools," (the name given to the findings of the task force.) I do, however, think there are many positive aspects to the philosophy of inclusion and hope with further serious and disciplined investigations we may find what components can realistically work for the Andover school system. It is also my hope that this issue will not serve to divide special needs advocates, educators and parents who hold differing views.

There is a point of intersection at which we all stand to gain from an educational system that is responsive to the needs of all students.

Refurbished Addison Gallery re-opens Oct. 22 at Phillips Academy

Phillips Academy's Addison Gallery of American Art will re-open to the public Friday, Oct. 22, with the presentation of a nationally touring exhibition, "The Drawings of Stuart Davis: The Amazing Continuity," a retrospective organized by The American Federation of Arts.

The museum has been a construction site since mid-June. On Friday, Oct. 29, the Addison Gallery will host a free, public, opening reception from 5 to 7 p.m. in conjunction with the opening of "Within Memory," a photography show organized by the Montage '93 International Festival of the Image, in association with the Addison Gallery. This show features the work of 11 photographers from around the world.

Museum visitors will notice a number of improvements resulting from this summer's construction project: a new sculpture courtyard has been built on the Chapel Avenue side of the museum; a new museum entrance, designed specifically for visitors with special needs, is off the sculpture courtyard; and a new elevator has been installed. A new climate-control system has been added to safeguard the art; and there are new storage/study rooms.

The neoclassical museum was designed by Charles Platt and built through the generosity of Phillips Academy's benefactor, Thomas Cochran, who also gave the core collection of some 400 works in 1930. Today the museum holds 11,000 objects and is in the forefront of museums devoted exclusively to American art.

The Addison Gallery is an educational resource for scholars of all ages and features an educational outreach program to public schools throughout the region.

Educators should contact Andrea Myers, the gallery's education outreach coordinator, to schedule free class visits and tours. Call 749-4016.

The Addison Gallery is open to the public, free of charge Tuesdays through Saturdays, 10 a.m. - 5 p.m.; Sundays, 1-5 p.m.; closed Mondays and national holidays.

Visual dating is for older houses in town

Are you curious about who built your house and when? Do you know why it looks the way it does? The Andover Historical Society offers some answers with Jane Griswold's workshop, "How to date a house" next Wednesday, Oct. 13, at 6 p.m.

Visual dating can usually be confirmed by written records and often oral history fills in the blanks. One example is the story of an early Andover firehouse. Found on the 1882 birds-eye view of Andover Village, its date and whereabouts were questioned. The trim on the corner boards, the gentle curve over the windows and doors were appropriate details for a public building in a thrifty New England town in the mid-19th century - some decoration and Greek Revival style in honor of our democratic ways. Old newspapers hold many clues, like the 1883 Andover Advertiser reporting that Mr. Cole moved a firehouse to Maple Avenue for use as his barn and carpentry shop."

The story of the firehouse, number 78 Maple Ave., was in fact well-known because this information has been passed down orally from owner to owner.

Bring your questions to Andover's historical museum and research center at 97 Main St. Ms. Griswold, local architect and educator, will help you find answers to questions about your old house. The cost is $5; advance registration is required. Call 475-2236.

Artists Guild to meet Oct. 17

The Andovers Artists Guild will hold the first meeting of the season Sunday, Oct. 17, at 2 p.m. at North Parish Church in Old North Andover Center.

Marilyn Swift will demonstrate a watercolor painting.

The graduate of the College of New Rochelle, N.Y., has also studied at the Massachusetts College of Art, DeCordova Museum School and with well-known Cape Ann artists.

Her primary medium now is watercolor; she also does stone and plate lithographs on her antique press.

Her other roles include teacher, juror and gallery owner. Ms. Swift is an exhibiting member of the Copley Society, Rockport and North Shore Art associations and has several solo exhibits to her credit.

There is a $2 fee for non-members.

Gridders performance not what coach anticipated

By Rick Harrison

It was not the type of performance or outcome Andover High head football Coach Dick Collins or his staff had anticipated.

The Golden Warriors, struggling to keep their heads above water in a season where experience is at a premium, dropped a windswept 14-0 decision to Tewksbury as the Redmen unleashed a secret weapon named Alex Adorno and rode a staunch defensive effort to the victory.

For Tewksbury, which had yielded 87 points in its previous three starts, it marked the first victory over Andover since a 31-6 triumph in 1990 and the first shutout win against AHS since a 10-0 decision in 1985.

The locals, who shot themselves in the foot several times with costly penalties, managed just 60 yards total offense in the final three quarters after chalking up 85 in the first period.

Quarterback Jeff Brammer was sacked five times by the swarming Redmen defense, who tossed the senior signal-caller for 44 yards in losses, and they also hurried most of his passes.

Alex Adorno, the smallish sophomore running back who earned his start with a strong week of practice, responded by scoring both Tewksbury touchdowns on runs of four and 10 yards.

The bright spots for Andover were a solid offensive performance by senior running back Dave Jorgenson, and the continued excellence of Co-Captain Toby Guzowski on defense.

The entire AHS defense performed well, especially in the second half when it held the Redmen to just 33 yards total offense.

Veteran TMHS quarterback Chris Snow had completed 7-of-13 passes for 134 yards in the first two periods, but added just one second-half strike for 11 yards while the running game was limited to 22 yards in 14 rushes.

Jorgenson top rusher

The problem was the Golden Warriors failed to get anything generated themselves.

Jorgenson finished the game with 116 yards on just 15 carries, including separate bursts of 31, 21, 20 and 15 yards.

But he was unable to spring loose on a touchdown gallop.

The passing game was virtually nonexistent, as Brammer hits 5-of-14 passes for just 46 yards. Guzowski caught three aeriels for 23 yards and Co-Captain Paul Allard added a pair of receptions for 23 yards.

Four times Andover penetrated Tewksbury territory but the locals never got closer than the Redmen 18 yard line.

In the first period, when AHS had the stiff breeze at its back, the running of Jorgenson and two Brammer passes to Guzowski (nine and seven yards) moved the ball from the Andover five to midfield before Snow produced the game's lone turnover by intercepting a pass.

That set up the first TD, with Tewksbury marching 45 yards in seven plays and overcoming a personal foul penalty.

The game was marred by 135 yards in penalties, 85 against the Redmen.

Adorno carried five times for 41 yards in the drive, eventually knifing over from the four after a 16-yard Snow to sophomore wide receiver Ben Christopher pass (four catches, 92 yards) advanced the ball to the Warriors seven.

Ryan Columbus toed the conversion to make it 7-0.

Andover took the ensuing kickoff and moved from its own 48 to the Tewksbury 18, a 21-yard burst by Jorgenson leading the way.

Frustration

However, at this point Jorgenson was nailed for a three-yard loss, two passes fell incomplete and on fourth down Brammer was buried by defensive tackle Adam Fuller (three sacks) back at the 31.

The Redmen then marched 69 yards in 10 plays for the insurance TD, the key gainers Snow passes to Christopher (22 yards on third-and-8) and Matt Kenny.

Adorno took a shovel-pitch right 10 yards for the touchdown, and once again Columbus booted the PAT to make it 14-0 midway through the second period.

Late in the third quarter a fine 22 yard punt return by Allard put Andover at the Redmen 35, and Guzowski followed an illegal block infraction against Andover with a 12-yard run on a draw play to the 30.

Jorgenson was stopped cold on a counter play, however, and passes intended for Guzowski and Allard fell incomplete as AHS surrendered on downs at the T-29.

The Golden Warriors reached the home team's 44 yard line midway through the final stanza, but the final bid died when a fourth-and-8 pass from Brammer to Guzowski was off the mark.

Guzowski participated in 11 tackles for Andover, while other defensive standouts included sophomore end Dana McCann (eight tackles, three unassisted), junior linebacker Peter Daniels, junior middle guard Mike Dalton, sophomore George Secchiari and Allard in the secondary.

Andover managed just seven first downs, 99 net yards rushing and 145 yards total offense from scrimmage.

Methuen tomorrow

Things certainly don't figure to get any easier for Andover tomorrow night when the Golden Warriors return home to face Methuen at Lovely Field.

Kickoff is 7 p.m.

Coach Larry Klimas' defending Eastern Mass. Division 2-A Super Bowl champions are 2-1-0, having beaten Haverhill 30-12 last weekend and Tewksbury 30-7 in their opener while also dropping a 20-0 decision to Chelmsford.

Girls volleyball team upsets Billerica

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls varsity volleyball team, which spent the first third of the season going through the painful process of on-the-job training, registered what could be a tremendous confidence-boosting victory when it upset Billerica 2-1 earlier this week.

"We have the talent," noted varsity Coach George Sullivan, "but the girls don't believe in themselves yet. Hopefully this win will turn things around."

"It was by far the best match we've played this year," commented Coach Art Iworsley, who ran the show alone when Sullivan was sidelined by illness and missed an event he was coaching for the first time in his lengthy career. "The girls overcame some second-game anxiety and played the deciding game as if they had nothing to lose."

The victory was the third in four matches for the Lady Warriors, after five straight season-opening losses which included a 2-0 setback to Billerica.

Andover also swept past Wilmington 2-0 recently and dropped a 2-0 decision to perennial power Dracut.

The Lady Warriors, with only two seniors on the roster, are feeling their way through this transition season with hope for better things down the road.

Just how far down the road remains to be seen.

On the plus side, there are 23 underclassmen on the roster and the junior varsity team is playing well with a 6-3 record after nine matches.

The triumph over Billerica left Andover at 3-6 overall, as they climbed out of the MVC Large School cellar and moved past Lowell (2-6) whom AHS hosted yesterday.

Andover plays slumping Methuen (4-4) tomorrow at the Rangers' Field House.

Key injury

The AHS netwomen were minus two key people against Billerica.

In addition to Coach Sullivan, also absent was junior setter-hitter Leah Mason whose loss may prove to be a severe physical and psychological blow before the season is over. She will be out for the balance of the schedule with mononucleosis.

Miss Mason had returned to the lineup after being sidelined most of the year with injuries to both ankles.

"We had just started to jell after she returned, and Leah's presence on the court gave us some added experience and leadership," said Coach Sullivan. "Once again I was reminded of last basketball season when our star player, Kerry Hagerty, went down with the same illness."

Andover JVs

The AHS junior varsity (6-3) swept past Wilmington, 2-0, dropped a 2-0 decision (15-4, 15-11) to Dracut, and lost an unusual 2-1 match to Billerica.

Against the Indians AHS squandered an 11-1 first-game lead, bowing 16-14, then blew Billerica away 15-3 in game two before losing the deciding game, 15-10.

Contributing hustling all-around performances for the locals in all three matches were sophomores Allyson Ahern, Gina Seibert, Alyson Shea, Cindy Su, Katie Jurda, Amy Lumley and freshman Allison Daber.

Mike Eruzione, Chris Nilan to instruct Andover Mites this month

The Merrimack Valley office of John Hancock Financial Services will bring a taste of Olympic hockey to 60 young Andover players at the Brooks School, 1160 Great Pond Road, North Andover, Thursday, Oct. 14, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

The Andover Youth Hockey Mite Division, ages 5-9, will be instructed by Mike Eruzione, captain of the 1980 gold medal team, now director of special programs at Boston University and a commentator for CBS; and Chris Nilan, a 13-year NHL veteran with the Montreal Canadiens, New York Rangers and Boston Bruins who was twice selected for Team USA. He now works for John Hancock's community relations department.

The clinic takes place in conjunction with local games scheduled on the John Hancock USA Hockey Tour, a 24-city, 26-game hockey tour to prepare Team USA for the Olympic Winter Games in Lillehammer, Norway, in February. Games scheduled for Boston include Boston College at Conte Forum on Oct. 13 at 7 p.m. and Boston University at Walter Brown Arena Oct. 15 at 7:05 p.m.

"The John Hancock USA Hockey Tour and youth hockey clinics are two ways Hancock can help bring the excitement of the Olympic Games to Andover," said Greg Felden, John Hancock agency manager who heads the Merrimack Valley office. "We are proud to help Team USA on their way to Lillehammer as well as to promote sports locally."

ACBL currently holding registration

The Andover Church Basketball League, which is approaching its fifth continuous decade of providing athletic activity for the town's youth, is currently holding registration for the upcoming 1993-94 season.

The following coordinators are now signing up youth for league play: Ray Gibbons (Ballardvale United), Ed Rouillard (Free Christian), Joe Tripi (St. Augustine's) and Bob French (St. Robert's).

Youth who live in Andover and do not attend a town church, or youth who attend an Andover church that does not have a team, may also register for the league.

Registration forms are available from the church coordinators, or may be obtained at the Andover Hockey Shop in Shawshen Square and Village Sampler, 34 Chestnut St. The fee is $25.

The league has five divisions: Junior (3rd-4th grade), Intermediate Boys (5th-6th grade), Intermediate Girls (4th-6th grade), Senior Boys (7th-8th grade) and Senior Girls (7th-8th grade).

Teams practice one hour each week. Juniors play games on Wednesday evenings, while all other divisions play on Saturday or Sunday afternoon.

Chelmsford too much cross country teams

By Rick Harrison

Despite the strong individual performances of senior Captains Max Dawson and Kevin Sharkey, who were among the top five for the second consecutive meet, the Andover High boys cross country team dropped a 26-31 Merrimack Valley Conference decision to perennial Large School power Chelmsford on the Lions' 3.0 mile course.

The loss was the third for Small School member Andover, all by eight points or less, as the Golden Warriors continue their slow, steady climb to consistency.

The Andover girls, who romped past Lawrence High in their opener, fell to 1-1-0 overall after being thrashed 17-41 by Chelmsford (2-0-0).

Coach Leo Lafond opted to bypass the Bay State Invitational at Franklin Park in Boston.

"You don't want to do too much, too soon," he explained. "That's when the runners start getting shin splints."

"I'm really pleased with the boys' dual meet performance against Chelmsford. They stepped up and ran competitively against a strong team," said Coach Lafond. "We should get better and better as the year progresses."

Yesterday the Andover harriers hosted Tewksbury in their MVC home opener.

The girls figured to have a tough time against the unbeaten Redgals, 4-0-0, while the boys stood an even chance to crack the win column against the Redmen (1-2-1).

Next Wednesday both AHS squads will travel to Lowell to face the Red Raiders at Shedd Park (3:30 p.m.).

Andover boys

Max Dawson placed second overall behind Chelmsford ace Bob Therrien in the three-mile race, the winner finishing in 17:30 with Dawson eight seconds back (17:38).

Kevin Sharkey, who returned to cross country this fall after a year with the football team, was fourth in 17:56.

Russo returned after missing the opening tri-meet with a knee injury.

Andover girls

The Chelmsford girls swept the top four places, led by ace Stacey Keane whose 18:35 clocking would have put her top 10 in the boys race and was a whopping 87 seconds better than runner-up Anita Sebastian (20:02).

Junior Captain Amanda Verreault was the top Andover finisher, fifth overall in 20:58, while freshman Melissa Ying placed sixth with a time of 21:03.

Golf tournament benefits car crash victim

The third annual Stephen Kuketz Benefit Fund Golf Tournament and Benefit Bash will be held Sunday, Oct. 17, at the Rolling Green Golf Course and Character's Bar & Grill at the Andover Marriott. The noon-time tournament features cash prizes. Festivities at Character's will begin at 4 p.m. Gifts donated by several area businesses will be raffled off during the evening.

The tournament and benefit bash entry fee is $40. Tickets for the party only are available for $14 in advance or $15 at the door. Coffee, tea, soda, snacks, salad, pizza and cake are included and a cash bar will be available. The event raises funds to help defray the medical expenses 31-year-old Steve Kuketz, older brother of Andover resident David Kuketz, incurred as a result of a car accident in April 1991.

Surgeons at University Hospital in Boston performed emergency open-heart surgery to fix Mr. Kuketz's ruptured aorta. Fifty-three pints of blood and his athletic background kept him fighting for his life. He became paralyzed at the waist due to insufficient blood flow in his spinal column and a severe infection threatened his aortic graft.

Mr. Kuketz spent two weeks in ICU, four weeks under hospital care and 10 weeks at the New England Spinal Rehabilitation Center at University Hospital. A dislocated hip, shattered arm, severely fractured jaw, 50 percent loss of vocal cords and blindness in one eye prompted countless operations. One surgeon thought he'd never have the opportunity to speak with Mr. Kuketz as he bare-handedly manipulated his aorta.

Mr. Kuketz and his wife, Ellen, were married in July 1991. Using his leg braces and crutches, Mr. Kuketz pulled himself to the alter. They have two daughters, Christine and Erica.

Mr. Kuketz has managed TLS (Tree and Land excavation Service Inc.), out of Brockton, for the past 10 years. His father, Arthur Kuketz, brother, David, and friends worked weekends and evenings to keep the business going for him.

Sponsors are needed and donations are accepted. Make donations payable to the Stephen Kuketz Benefit Fund, c/o Haymarket Cooperative Bank, 315 Hanover St., Boston, Mass. 02113. To reserve tickets, call David Kuketz at 470-9647.

PA TIDBITS

The Phillips Academy girls field hockey team won their season-opener against Winsor 2-0. New-comer Jordyn Kramer tallied both goals and Heidi Cline of Andover notched one assist. The girls were held to a scoreless tie against Tabor Academy despite an impressive offense by Meghan Madera.

The girls soccer team improved to 2-0 after a 6-0 win over Tabor in which Captain Nicole Rhodes tallied two assists.

The boys varsity soccer team improved to 2-1 after a 2-0 win against Holderness and a 4-3 win at Tabor Academy. Trailing 3-1 at the half, Phillips rallied for three goals in the second half. Matt Bower scored the game-winning goal. Captain Mike Sullivan of Andover assisted on three goals.

Phillips' football team improved to 1-1 after a 35-0 victory over Tabor. Captain Todd Harris of Andover had five catches for 50 yards, including one 45-yard run for a touchdown.

The boys cross-country team opened their season by defeating Belmont Hill 41-18. Captain Greg Wilmore, senior Trevor Davies and junior Mark Moore were the top three finishers.

Boys soccer team regains scoring touch

By Rick Harrison

The unpredictable Andover High boys soccer team regained its scoring touch, which had been temporarily misplaced, and moved back into second place in the Large School Division of the Merrimack Valley Conference following victories over Central Catholic (5-3) and Wilmington (5-2).

After pumping home 12 goals in their first two games, the Golden Warriors managed just one in the next two outings prior to Central and Wilmington.

The victories improved AHS to 4-1-1 overall entering this week's play, three points behind undefeated-untied defending Large School champ Lowell (6-0-0) and just ahead of slumping Billerica (3-2-1) and surging Chelmsford (3-3-0).

Coach Dave Amundsen's crew had a crucial "four point game" with Lowell on Tuesday night, with the Red Raiders practically a must to keep the Red Raiders from running away with the race for first place.

The brutal string of games continues tonight when Small School co-leader Tewksbury (3-1-2) invades Lovely Field for a 7 p.m. game, and then it's back on the road for 10 a.m. games on Saturday at Billerica and Columbus Day at Chelmsford.

The only negative part to the wins over Central and Wilmington were the five goals allowed, after Andover had yielded only two in its first four games.

"Beating Wilmington (4-2-0) was a good way to start this crucial stretch," said Coach Amundsen. "Once again I'm really at a loss to explain our goalscoring (spurts and droughts). Human nature, I guess."

Senior striker and Captain Quang Nguyen scored four more goals in the two games, including his second hat trick of the season, and he entered the Lowell contest with eight goals in six games.

It's an impressive pace but one that would have to be maintained or stepped up if he were to challenge Steve Carbone's single-season AHS goalscoring mark of 23.

Golf team improves record to 8-0-0

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High golf team remained the class of the Merrimack Valley Conference this fall, improving to 8-0-0 in league play and 9-0-0 overall with victories over Central Catholic (5-4), Dracut (8-1), Haverhill (6-3) and Tewksbury (6-3).

Every other squad in the MVC, with the exception of Methuen, entered this week with at least three losses.

The Golden Warriors, who shared the Large School championship with Chelmsford in 1991 but have since shifted to the Small School Division, are also 33-5-1 overall in their last 39 matches.

Andover, in the midst of its second consecutive four-match week, has posted three 9-0 shutouts and won three other matches by one or two point margins this fall.

Andover 5
Central Catholic 4

AHS pulled out the match Coach Bob Lawson was fearing most, Central at its home Hickory Hill GC course, with key individual victories by sophomore Co-Captain Dave Shaffer at No. 1, senior Co-Captain Marc Escott at No. 5 and junior C.J. Dadd at No. 6.

Shaffer was the overall medalist with a 38, while Dadd, freshman No. 3 Pat Annese and sophomore No. 2 Jeff Mazza all shot 41.

Escott and sophomore No. 2 Jeff Shea both carded 42.

Shaffer, beaten just once this season

(6-1-0) and headed for All-Conference honors once again, trounced Central's Ken Connor 3-and-2 under the nine-hole match play format.

Shea lost to Norm Liversidge (40), 2-and-1, and the groups halved the fourball.

In the second foursome, Escott trimmed Jason Larocque, 4-and-3, Mazza dropped a tough decision to Jamie Rischer on the final hole, and again the teams halved the fourball.

In the final group, Dadd swept past the Red Raiders' Bernie Cantrell, 4-and-3, while Annese was nudged by Steve Meade 1-up on the ninth hole.

The deciding point came when Dadd and Annese combined to win the fourball.

Field hockey team registers first win of season

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High field hockey team registered its first victory of the season, and continued to gain respect from opposing players and coaches around the Merrimack Valley Conference for its hustle and strong defensive play.

The Lady Warriors, acting as if they had stored up all their offense for a single volcanic eruption, pumped home four goals in a 4-1 romp over Tewksbury.

The four goals were four times as many as they had netted in their first five games.

Coach Sandy Lunt's squad then played twin MVC powers Chelmsford (6-1-1) and Tyngsboro (6-0-2) extremely tough in back-to-back games 48 hours apart, dropping a 1-0 decision to Chelmsford and a 2-0 verdict to Tyngsboro.

Earlier this week Andover stepped out of league play and registered its first shutout of the season, but still had to settle for a 0-0 tie against visiting Concord-Carlisle of the Dual County League.

"They played us as well defensively as any team in the league," said veteran Tyngsboro Coach Irmin Pierce. "We battled to a standstill in the second half, and we were fortunate to get the early lead."

Coach Lunt was trying to locate and bottle whatever elixir it was the AHS girls drank before the Tewksbury game.

Girls soccer: Team squanders lead in two games

By Rick Harrison

Having it happen once was almost unheard of, but twice within a three-day span was incredible.

The Andover High girls soccer team squandered two-goal leads in consecutive games, as their seven-year shield of Merrimack Valley Conference invincibility to all but Billerica was shattered in stunning losses to Lowell, 4-3, and Wilmington, 3-2.

Both the Red Raiders and Wildcats are quality teams. Losing to either is not a great shock, but the way it happened was the kicker.

Lowell rallied from a 3-1 deficit with less than 20 minutes to play, scoring three goals eight minutes apart en route to its victory at Cawley Stadium.

Wilmington fell behind 2-0 in the opening 12 minutes, but rebounded to tie it midway through the second half and pull out the triumph on freshman Nicole Ciaramaglia's clutch goal with only 25 seconds left.

It marked the first time either school had ever beaten Andover in girls soccer.

Until these two games only two-time defending MVC champion Billerica had been able to defeat the Lady Warriors in league play.

"We're not used to blowing two-goal leads," noted Coach Dick Loschi after the first loss to Lowell. "I'm not sure how long it will take to recover. I didn't see a lot of confident looking players as we left the field after the game."

The statement proved prophetic 48 hours later after the carbon-copy loss to Wilmington.

"Very disappointing to fall apart the same way twice," said Coach Loschi following the second setback. "I would have been happy with a tie at that point."

The news was not all bad, however, as Andover (4-3-0 overall, 3-2-0 MVC) staged a comeback of its own to defeat Tewksbury 2-1 earlier this week.

The locals were also odds-on favorites to dump Chelmsford (1-7-0) yesterday.

Saturday morning the AHS booters have a tough non-leaguer at Winchester (10 a.m.), and next Wednesday night archrival Billerica (6-0-2) comes to Lovely Field for a 7 p.m. clash.

Seventh annual ski night is tonight

The Andover Athletic Club will host its seventh annual ski night Thursday, Oct. 7, from 5:30 to 8 p.m. The event, which is open to the public and free, will provide a chance to talk with ski representatives from the mountains in the Northeast. Local ski retailers will be available to show the latest trends in ski equipment. For more information, call Diane at 373-1596.

Swim team gets belted in dual meet action

By Rick Harrison

The Andover High girls' swim team fell from the lofty ranks of the Merrimack Valley Conference undefeated, as league tri-power Haverhill (with Nashua and Chelmsford) belted the Lady Warriors 121-65 in dual meet action.

The loss, which came on the heels of impressive victories against Lowell and

Notre Dame Academy of Tyngsboro, left Coach Marilyn Fitzgerald's squad at 2-1-0 in the MVC and 2-2-0 overall.

Andover hosted Westford Academy earlier this week at the Greater Lawrence Regional Vo-Tech pool, and now prepares for devastating back-to-back home duals against Chelmsford and Nashua on Friday, Oct. 15 and Tuesday, Oct. 19 respectively.

Frosh gridders put another mark in win column

By Rick Harrison

Matt Trede rushed for 95 yards and two touchdowns, while Ryan Games provided the crushing blow with a 72-yard second-half kickoff return, as the Andover High freshman football team improved to 2-0-0 with a 26-14 victory over Tewksbury at Lovely Field.

The AHS frosh, coached by Ken Pellerin and Frank Delaney, scored one TD in each quarter to whip previously undefeated Tewksbury (21-0) which opened with wins against Lawrence High and Central Catholic.

Andover jumped to a quick 8-0 lead by scoring on its first possession for the second straight game.

Marc Tropeano raced 40 yards on a counter play for the touchdown, following a Tewksbury punt, with that run preceded by a pair of Trede rushes for 21 yards.

Tropeano also caught the two-point conversion pass from quarterback Jack Glazebrook.

A fumble halted the young Warriors' second drive, but the defense again stymied the Redmen and forced them to punt from mid-field.

Trede escaped on a 20-yard run, Craig Hartwell carried three times for 11 yards and a first down, Trede added consecutive five-yard gains, and then Trede gathered in a 10-yard TD pass from Glazebrook.

When the attempted pass for the extras fell incomplete the Andover lead stayed at 14-0.

Frosh gridders put another mark in win column

With two minutes left in the half, Tewksbury pulled two trick plays from its book and cut the Andover lead to 14-8. "They used a hook-and-pitch and a double pass against us," said Coach Pellerin. "And both of them worked." Games' backbreaker

The late score gave the Redmen momentum heading into the half, but Ryan Games reversed it quickly when he broke the second-half kickoff up the middle 72 yards for a touchdown.

Glazebrook threw a pair of outstanding blocks on the return, which made it 20-8 and was the only scoring in the third quarter.

The young Warriors capped their offense with a long fourth-quarter touchdown march, highlighted by Keith D'Amelio's 11-yard run, a 15-yard burst by Trede and an eight-yard jaunt by Craig Hartwell.

Trede covered the final 25 yards for his third TD of the season, and when the conversion pass failed to connect it was 26-8.

An Andover fumble at the home team's eight yard line in the closing minutes enabled Tewksbury to put up its second score.

Following Matt Trede in the rushing parade were Marc Tropeano, with 45 yards in three carries, and Craig Hartwell with 22 yards in six lugs.

Overall the locals had 165 yards rushing in 27 carries, two returns for 85 yards, and 15 yards passing as Glazebrook went 2-for-6.

The Andover freshmen gridders shoot for their third straight win tomorrow against Methuen at the Rangers' Nicholson Stadium (3:30 p.m.)

SCS Cleaning Systems, Inc.

For efficient and thorough cleaning services, SCS Cleaning Systems, Inc. is the name to remember. Whether you have a large house that needs weekly or bi-weekly cleaning, or a smaller house or apartment that only needs once a month attention, SCS will be glad to serve you. SCS also does cleaning of small offices and commercial buildings. All personnel at SCS Cleaning Systems are fully insured and bonded.

SCS Cleaning Systems' crews work as a unit under the supervision of a Cleaning Supervisor. The Supervisor delivers the crew to your home or office, and returns at the end of the cleaning session to inspect the job and to pick-up the crew. SCS supplies all the equipment and chemicals that they use. Cleaning sessions start at $36 for three hours, and increase in price depending on the amount of time necessary to complete the job. In that three hours the crew will do routine dusting, and vacuuming, clean bathrooms and kitchen (including cabinets and countertops), and wash all floors.

SCS Cleaning Systems can also do specialty cleaning jobs such as steam cleaning upholstery and carpets, window cleaning and some fire restoration work.

SCS Cleaning Systems, Inc. has worked hard to establish a reputation for efficient, thorough and reliable service. They count among their customers many Merrimack Valley businesses and families. Their cleaning crews are friendly and well trained and SCS offers a 24-hour answering service, so that they are only a phone call away. When you think of cleaning services, think of SCS Cleaning Systems, Inc.

State approves revaluations

By Don Staruk

The state Department of Revenue approved the town's new revaluation figures for residential property early this week and the assessor's office was planning to mail impact notices to every property owner today, Thursday.

Assessor William Krajleski expected commercial and industrial revaluations to be approved by yesterday, Wednesday.

The impact notices, which residents should have by the weekend, include the new property values.

The assessor's office will then conduct informal hearings next week to give residents a chance to discuss the revaluations.

The primary purpose of the hearings is to correct any mistakes that may have been made in the process. Residents who wish will have an opportunity during the hearing process to look at the information on which their individual valuation was based.

The hearings will be at the assessor's office on the second floor of town offices, and in the conference room across the hall. They will run from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., and from 6-8 p.m., on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 12, 13 and 14. The hearings will be on a first-come, first-serve basis. No appointment is necessary.

Inspections completed

The town hired a team of inspectors to physically examine every property in town beginning last spring. That process has now been completed and Mr.

Krajleski said the inspectors actually got into about 40 percent of the houses in the community. For the other 60 percent, a form was mailed for property owners to fill out and mail to the assessor's office. Mr. Krajleski said the response on the forms has not been calculated, but that it was "very, very, very high."

The assessor did say that anyone who did not get inspected and did not return the form should still do so.

Barring that, take advantage of the hearings, he said. "If I could give anybody some advice, come in and check your records," Mr. Krajleski said.

Not responding to the town's request for the information can have a couple of effects, Mr. Krajleski said. The town will still estimate the value of the house, and that could be higher or lower than the actual value. And an owner who does not respond could lock him- or herself out of the appeal process.

If someone has not responded to the town's request to inspect the property, and has not returned the revaluation form, there is a good chance that in the event of an appeal the town would file for a dismissal, and that the dismissal would be approved, according to Mr. Krajleski.

After the hearing process is completed, the assessor's records will be updated and any further inspections that need to be made will be completed. The revaluation figures should then be ready for the first tax classification hearing with the Board of Selectmen scheduled for Nov. 15, Mr. Krajleski said.

Lt. Phillip Froburg, left, operations commander, Monday night presents Patrolman Dennis Lane, far right, with the police department's Life Saving Award for his heroic rescue of a woman from a burning truck last July. Chief James Johnson looks on. Patrolman Lane also received the fire department's Distinguished Service Medal and a letter of commendation from the Board of Selectmen.

THE AMERICAN Domestic Cookery BY A LADY.

GLOSSARY

Among the unfamiliar or rarely used terms scattered through Lechters' growing collection of venerable cookbooks are these, with appropriate definitions:

epervier:
a stand holding a large central dish or vase.

tench:
European and Western Asiatic freshwater fish.

chine:
a piece of the backbone of an animal carcass with the adjoining parts cut for cooking.

matelot:
a sauce made of wine, onions, seasonings, and fish stock.

cardoons:
artichokes.

Terms that are not usual to modern cookbooks are scattered through a growing collection of rare, antique cookbooks.

Then and now: Kitchen basics across the centuries

Then: Unlike today's high tech cooks with all the latest gadgets, 19th-century cooks made do with a very basic stock of kitchen supplies.

Garden vegetables were chopped, not garnished, meat was formed into patties, not perfectly molded with a meat baller, and cooks relied on experience and careful timing, not a thermometer, to know when their roasts were done.

Back then, a poached egg was appropriately called a "dropped egg" because it was carefully dropped into a pot of boiling water and cooked until the white was firm. Today's version is likely to be microwaved in 45 seconds with the aid of a special egg poacher that makes the procedure virtually fool-proof.

Long before gourmet magazines turned cooking into cuisine, there was simply the cookbook. No self-respecting housewife would be without this invaluable compendium, often small and leather-bound, that contained not only recipes and cooking techniques, but practical advice for managing a household -- everything from caring for the sick, to polishing furniture, to the proper way to rear children.

Now: A new interest in those cookbooks of yesterday is being generated by an individual who has played a significant role in shaping the state-of-the-art American kitchen. Donald Jonas,

John J. Collins Jr. Gallery sells antique Oriental rugs

Originally from New York, John J. Collins Jr. and his wife, Kate, migrated to New England in 1970. They settled in the colonial seaport city of Newburyport in 1971 where they presently live with their two children. The Collins purchased and restored more than a dozen 17th- and 19th-century buildings there, including an early stagecoach tavern and a brick mercantile warehouse. During this period, they collected New England antiquities. Mr. Collins opened his first antique store in 1972. This activity brought him in contact with large quantities of oriental rugs. A passionate interest soon began to develop. The Collins' first collection consisted mostly of Caucasian and "Shiraz" types. By the mid-1970s, they had collected more rugs than they could possibly use. In 1979, Mr. Collins opened his first Oriental rug gallery.

John J. Collins Jr. is one of perhaps only a dozen dealers in New England who specialize exclusively in old and antique Oriental rugs. He has been an invited lecturer at the American Conference on Oriental Carpets as well as the Oriental rug societies of Washington, Boston, Cleveland, Chicago and other interested groups. He is the author of three catalogs of South Persian tribal and village rugs, which have become reference material for collectors around the world. He was one of the founding editors of the Oriental Rug Review, an international color journal in its 12th year. He is the author of numerous articles about Oriental rugs ranging from introductory to advanced aspects, as well as consultant to several major collections of Oriental rugs.

From Nov. 7 to Nov. 21, an exhibition and sale of antique tribal and village rugs, kilims, and saddlebags will be held at the Gallery in Market Square in Newburyport. This is the eighth such exhibition held since 1987. These wonderful shows bring customers and rug lovers from all over the United States as well as other countries. Favorable reviews of these shows have appeared in both American and European publications. Rugs purchased from these shows have found places in important collections from London to Boston to Singapore. There is no charge to see these beautiful shows and no pieces are removed before the final date.

When special exhibits are not being presented, a wide range of mostly Persian rugs in all sizes from 50 to 150 years old can be seen there. Fine condition is of paramount importance in this gallery. The gallery is open every day, except when Mr. Collins is exhibiting out of town, so a call ahead is advised. Phone: 462-7276.

Then and now: Kitchen basics across the centuries

chairman and chief executive officer of Lechters, Inc., a national retailer of non-electric housewares, found the subject so intriguing that he started a collection.

With one of the rarest cookbooks in existence, one dating back to 1805, Mr. Jonas has created the Lechters Library of American Basic Cookery, from which the company occasionally will share selected recipes.

The move is noteworthy, considering that Lechters Housewares, through its 518 stores nationwide, supplies utensils and gadgets designed to make life in the kitchen easier, less messy and more fun. The books will give day-to-day cooking a new perspective and perhaps a new vernacular with such terms as cardoons (artichokes) and matelot (a sauce made of wine, onions, seasoning and fish stock).

While the gourmets and gastronomes of today may delight in the conveniences that adorn their kitchens, a look back reveals that the true "art of cookery" exists only on the pages where it was written long ago.

Where to find antiques

The antiques and collectibles featured on these pages were acquired at flea markets, auctions and antique shops. Some were handed down from family members and others were gifts from friends.

Whether a person is a beginner or a serious collector of antiques, here are some tips on collecting:

- Check out yard sales and flea markets. One person's junk can be another person's treasure.
- If selling something that may be antique be sure to go to a reputable dealer. Then go to another reputable dealer to get a second opinion.
- Go to a bookstore and get a book on antiques.

The candlestick pictured above may have been used in Jewish religious ceremonies. It is one of two that are embellished with the "lions of Judah." Lions are a common motif in Jewish art; they represent strength, devotion and loyalty, and are a positive image in Jewish scripture. The candles are lit on Sabbath and other holidays and are traditionally lit by the woman of the household and her daughters.

Hummel figurines are handcrafted, handpainted

Since they were first introduced in 1935, America has been in love with the endearing charm of M.I. Hummel figurines. Handcrafted and handpainted by highly-skilled artisans from the Goebel factory, these figurines continue to recall fond memories of childhood. One such figurine is Autumn Harvest, shown at right, which portrays a small child carrying a basket of crispy red apples, possibly to the kitchen for mom to bake a tasty apple pie. Accented with garden fresh butter-nut squash and unshelled roasted nuts, this charming figurine, with its warm russet earth tones, makes an ideal holiday tabletop arrangement or a delightful gift to take to Grandma's house when the frost is on the pumpkin. For more information contact: The M.I. Hummel Club, Goebel Plaza, P.O. Box 11, Pennington, N.J. 08534-0011 or call: 1-800-666-CLUB.

Toby Jugs first appeared in the 1780s

Some of the most highly-prized collectibles in England, Toby Jugs, are little known in the United States. Toby Jugs are ceramic jugs of either full figures or heads and shoulders with a handle at the back and a hole at the top. They first appeared in England in the 1780s. Standing eight to nine inches tall, they were probably initially used as pitchers for beer. The Tobys above, on the top from left, are Winston Churchill, General Patton and President Clinton. On the bottom, from left, are Henry VIII, General Rommel and Sherlock Holmes. It is not known when Toby Jugs achieved their collectible status but the first recorded collection was sold at Christies in 1902. Today there are still some companies producing Toby Jugs, among them, Kevin Francis Ceramics, considered a market leader in high quality collectibles. The Toby Jugs from this company are limited editions. They range in price from $160 to $350. Tobys are rarely sold in stores, though you can find out more about them by writing to: Kevin Francis Ceramics, P.O. Box 1267, Warren, MI 48090 or calling 1-800-634-0431.
